

Patricia Lawrence, president of the Hilton Miami Downtown and Resorts World Bimini, said, “The Miami Yacht Show is a world-renowned display of the finest vessels and there is no better place to hold such an illustrious event than our Biscayne Bayfront property. We are proud to host the Miami Yacht Show, and we are excited to help bring this and other large-scale shows and special events to the cultural epicenter of Miami.”

About the 2018 Miami Yacht Show

Celebrating its 30th year, the 2018 Miami Yacht Show opened Wednesday, February 15 along Collins Avenue across from the Fontainebleau and Eden Roc hotels in Miami Beach and wraps up on Monday, February 19. The show attracts a global audience to a spectacular display of yachts and marine products, including more than 500 new and brokerage yachts and a wide array of the latest marine technology and accessories.

Spanning more than a mile along the Indian Creek Waterway from 41st Street to 54th Street, the picturesque yacht show currently covers more than 1.2 million square feet of space. In addition to the amazing display of yachts and accessories, the show features floating cocktail lounges, food and live musical entertainment.

In addition to its iconic Collins Avenue location, the Miami Yacht Show also includes a display of superyachts on Watson Island at the Island Gardens Deep Harbour marina, known as Superyacht Miami. Yacht brokers can arrange transportation for clients between the two show locations or guests may visit MiamiYachtShow.com/SuperYacht to register for access.

Two different boat shows take place in Miami and Miami Beach during Presidents Day weekend in February. Informa manages and produces the Miami Yacht Show on Collins Avenue, and co-owns it with the International Yacht Brokers Association. The event runs concurrently with the Miami International Boat Show, which is owned and operated by the National Marine Manufacturers Association.
